Costume jewelry makers marks database

A Maker's is a unique stamp placed on jewelry and watches to ensure the authenticity of the manufacturer. These stamps usually consist of manufacturers' initials, names, or another uniquely representative symbol. Identifying this brand is the first step in determining the value of a jewelry. In addition to Maker's, some countries require characteristics, which are provided by the country where production took place. Characteristics can provide additional information about the place of origin, date of manufacture and metal content. A maker's stamp is another term for the maker. The brand is stamped on jewelry, and there may be other stamps on jewelry as well. Besides the manufacturer's brand, there is also a gold resunit mark that shows the percentage of pure gold in the piece. For example, 14K can also be represented as 585, which means it is 58.5% (14/24) pure gold. In the United States, jewelers have been required to stamp a purity mark on their pieces since 1906, and in 1961 the United States demanded a maker mark. 417 - 10K = 41.7% gold 585 - 14k = 58.5% gold 750 - 18K = 75% gold 917 - 22K = 91.7% gold 999 - 24K = 99.9% gold A true characteristic is a guarantee of an independent body of authority that the content of the precious metal is true. Characteristics vary from country to country. In some countries, such as the UK, the feature consists of several stamps, including the type of metal, the manufacturer's brand and the year of the labelling. Maker tags are the initials or name of the production company or another representative symbol stamped into a gold, silver, or platinum element. Also called Trademarks, they often provide the only evidence that a particular jewelry has actually been produced by a certain jewelry maker. When such brands are present, the jewelry item is said to be signed by the maker or manufacturer. In some countries, Italy for example, official maker brands are assigned to registered jewelers and their use monitored by a body such as the Chamber of Commerce. Sometimes a jeweler develops notes over time and knows which brand was used when helping the jewelry historian or appraisers accurately dating an item. In France, historically, the administration de la Garantie stored copper plates as maker brands were stamped (by law) creating an overview of the brand. At one point, these were all destroyed, leaving us without this valuable historical reference. Costume Jewelry Collectors Int'l is happy to host SEARCHING COSTUME JEWELRY originally created and published by Doty Stringfield at IllusionJewels.com with research from contributor Pat Seal©1997 to present Researching Costume Jewelry (RCJ) is a collaboration between hundreds of costume jewelry collectors and retailers who have shared - and continue to share - their knowledge, photos, written articles and jewelry catalogs along with assisting in other ways.
